
Basic document information

Entering information in the Info catalog

This catalog is used to record basic document information that is repeated in various parts of the book. When this catalog has been saved and closed—and you open one of the FrameMaker templates in the book—the document number, date, manual title and so forth are automatically cross-referenced (and formatted) to this catalog in the opened document. The only step required is to update the cross-references in each new template. To see how the information will appear in document footers, notice the footers in this document. Use the cross-reference update to see how the footers will appear throughout the book..

On the following pages, enter information that is applicable to your document following the explanatory text in each item; the component name is shown in brackets [bold]. In this catalog, the paragraph names are prefaced by “zfmt:” to indicate that they are used for formatting and information purposes. Example for correct syntax are provided in italics.

Do not enter carriage returns or spaces unless appropriate. The entered text will wrap automatically in the affected documents. Spelling, and the use of upper or lowercase characters and abbreviations must follow the examples provided in the NT/BNR Technical Documentation Standards.

If it is necessary to delete information contained in a “zfmt” paragraph, in zfmt:NoticeFCC for instance, cut the text but leave the paragraph marker at the beginning of the paragraph. The paragraph marker marks the text for the various cross-references throughout the document. It needs to remain with the paragraph, even if the paragraph is empty.
